Great hunting tract heavily wooded with mature timber and surrounded by cropland!

Great tract for hunting and investment. 28 acres of tall mature old growth trees which make for a great investment. Easy to just walk through yet heavily wooded. Lots of buck sign throughout property. Surrounded by cropland and other wooded tracts you can see why the bucks are hanging out on this tract. This tract could make a great weekend getaway or even a home site. Soil maps indicate good for a septic system. Being well off the main road, you can get some peace here after a day at work. Enjoy the country atmosphere and gaze at the stars at night and in the morning head out the back door for some hunting time. You could gaze out over the vast cropland fields from the porch and just watch the wildlife. This could be the one you have been waiting for.

The Eastern Shore of Virginia was known as “Accomac Shire”, until it was renamed Northampton County in 1642. The present Accomack County was created from Northampton County in 1663. Members of an English voyage of exploration landed in the area in 1603, four years before the founding of the Jamestown Colony. Captain John Smith visited the region in 1608. The county and the original shire were named for the Accawmack Indians, who resided in the area when the English first explored it in 1603. The Accawmacke nation at the time numbered around 2000, and were governed by Debedeavon, a paramount chief called by the English the “Laughing King”. He became a staunch ally of the English newcomers, granting them several large areas for their own use. Accomac Shire was established in 1634 as one of the eight original shires of Virginia. The name comes from the native word Accawmack, which meant “on the other side”.
